As a strategist, my analytical and scientific background has enabled me to approach client challenges at the midpoint of art and science. I began my career in the music industry at the dawn of social media; an exciting time which provided a solid foundation stone for the fundamental principles of turning audiences into advocates.

I'm most passionate about leading clients towards a more sustainably-focused and purpose-driven future while still achieving growth and driving innovation, and I've worked with a wide mix of UK and global brands to help them achieve this.
